09:00 – 10:30	PARALLEL SESSION Estonian e-Governance Academy e- Governance solutions on a national level: practical example of e-identification system and cyber security The workshop will start with a cyber security session during which experts will show how hacking takes place and what the hacker is able to do with publicly available resources. The main emphasize is on the effect, what the hacker is able to reach. Next demonstration and practical exercise is about e-authentication and e-signing and will explain how the cross-border electronic signatures work. The topic will be explained based on the examples of Estonia, Finland, Latvia and Lithuania, both from a legal and business point of view. Lastly, the workshop will provide an overview of e-Governance Academy’s ten years of experience in e-government policy planning and implementation, organizational setup, legal and technical frameworks in more to 50 countries. Moderator: TBC Ivar Tallo, e-Governance Academy Speakers: Tiit Anmann, SignWise Hannes Astok, e-Governance Academy Liisi Jürgen, SignWise Arvo Ott, e-Governance Academy Mari Pedak, e-Governance Academy Ragnar Rattas, Estonian Information Systems Authority Raul Rikk, e-Governance Academy	Online
09:00 – 10:00	PARALLEL SESSION Freedom House The "State" of Protection: The Role of States in Securing the Digital Security of Human Rights Defenders While digital technology has been critical to boosting the effectiveness of the work of human rights defenders and journalists, it has created areas of vulnerability as governments and non-state actors adopt sophisticated techniques for monitoring, threatening and harassing journalists and human rights defenders for what they do online. In this discussion, we will seek to answer: what does the "model state" that protects and defends online freedoms and freedom of expression look like? We will consider what commitments "role model" states should uphold, from instituting policies that set the standard on proportionality and necessity of surveillance practices and other norms setting to protecting those who are targeted for freely expressing themselves online. We will also explore how the international community can support states that struggle to protect and defend freedom of expression, and counter trends in other states that seek to undermine these values.	Online 1

09:00 – 10:00	PARALLEL SESSION Yahoo! “Dangerous” Speech and Intermediary Liability: Balancing the chilling impact of government regulation of speech with security online The freedom to express ideas underpins the vitality of the Internet, and free expression is only assured when people feel safe. This is a solutions-focused conversation about the kind of virtual commons that best supports the full range of human rights, and about the respective roles of companies, governments and civil society in nurturing a free, open and safe Internet. We will begin by outlining the context and defining the problem, and then generating specific recommendations for solutions. Moderator: Ebele Okobi, Yahoo!, United States Speakers: Richard Allan, Facebook, United Kingdom Susan Benesch, Harvard University, United States Lucy Purdon, Institute for Human Rights and Business, United Kingdom Karmen Turk, Law Firm Tamme Otsmann Ruus Vabamets, Estonia	Freedom
09:00 – 10:00	PARALLEL SESSION Internet and Jurisdiction Project Towards a multi-stakeholder cooperation framework to help prevent a fragmentation of Cyberspace The transnational Internet is instrumental in fulfilling Article 19 of the UDHR. However, there is a growing tension between its cross-border nature and the territorial conception of national jurisdictions. Concerns are legitimately rising about a “fragmentation” of cross-border cyberspaces that would be detrimental to the benefits the Internet has brought to mankind. There is a need for new collaborative multi-stakeholder regimes to diffuse tensions and deal with the coexistence of different norms in shared online spaces. Moderator: Bertrand de la Chapelle, Internet and Jurisdiction Project, France Speakers: Eduardo Bertoni, Director, Center for Studies on Freedom of Expression and Access to Information, Palermo University School of Law, Argentina	Transparency

10:00 – 11:00	PARALLEL SESSION Center for Democracy & Technology/Global Network Initiative Surveillance Reforms: Toward Transparency and Accountability Recognizing the ongoing worldwide debate over communications surveillance for national security purposes, and the need for this debate to be informed by clear and reliable information, this workshop will discuss the importance of, and challenges to, increasing the transparency and accountability of government surveillance programs. The workshop will: identify the challenges related to government and corporate transparency around communications surveillance and highlight relevant and emerging responses and best practices; explore related areas of emerging consensus regarding communications surveillance reform, including common ground between civil society initiatives such as the Necessary and Proportionate principles and the Reform Government Surveillance principles issued by ICT companies; and, propose ways forward to increase transparency around government surveillance programs and identify the types of reforms that need to be pursued. We note that while there have been significant demands of businesses with regards to transparency and surveillance, it is the responsibility of all stakeholders, and particularly governments, to work towards and provide the transparency necessary to support thoughtful democratic debate around surveillance practices. Moderator: Emma Llanso, Center for Democracy and Technology, United States Speakers: Dirk Brengelmann, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Germany Lionel Veer, Human Rights Ambassador, The Netherlands Anja Kovacs, Internet Democracy Project, India Susan Morgan, The Global Network Initiative, United States Nick Pickles, Big Brother Watch, United Kingdom Chris Riley, Mozilla, United States Cynthia Wong, Human Rights Watch, United States	Freedom

10:00 – 11:00	PARALLEL SESSION Digital Defenders Partnership Digital Emergency Support what is it and how does it work Human rights defenders, journalists and activists around the world are facing many different digital threats. From targeted attacks by hijacking of email and social media accounts, to malware attacks to websites and the tracking or stealing of devices. Mitigating these threats is often not as straight forward as it might seem. A panel of experts will take you into the field of digital emergency support and demonstrate the steps of mitigating emergencies through a number of real life examples. Moderator: Fieke Jansen, Hivos, Netherlands Speakers: Niels ten Oever, Article 19, United Kingdom Anton Chukin, Digital Security Consultant, Kazakhstan Peter Noorlander, Media Legal Defence Initiative, United Kingdom	Transparency
11:00 – 11:30	Coffee Break	6th floor
11:30 – 13:00	PANEL DISCUSSION III One Internet The Internet has been able to serve as a tool for freedom chiefly because it has been universally and uniformly open, regardless of from where or by whom it was accessed, with few lamentable exceptions. Preserving the fundamental uniform character of the Internet is crucial. All attempts to fracture and divide the structure of the Internet may lead to a practical decrease in freedoms both on- and offline. The technical and political aspects of “one Internet” therefore need to be addressed and guidance needs to be provided by the multi-stakeholder community on how to maintain the integrity and global interoperability of the Internet. Moderator: Rebecca MacKinnon, Cofounder, Global Voices Online Speakers: Vinton Cerf, Vice President and Chief Internet Evangelist, Google Tomas Lamanauskas, Head of Corporate Strategy Division, International Telecommunication Union Joy Liddicoat, Human Rights Specialist, Association for Progressive Communications David Lidington, Minister for Europe, United Kingdom	Online
